@wastedwithkate It wouldn't be like that if people had better options for responsible free rubbish disposal. Ok- so each bin has $2 worth of rates... and one 2 bedroom flat with now up to 16 people living on the property has one bin... so it would be cheaper if your bitch asses rounded us up & shot everyone poor then aye... 13h

Why is it so hard for others to be considerate of others? They're likely the same people who leave their trays on the table at fast food restaurants because it's the staffs job to clean and tidy

Just so you know my habits have changed heaps since watching your videos, I often think about you when I'm doing my waste management @cvnt3mpress It's lose lose however way we look it imo. My neighbour still uses his incinerator for most rubbish. Just as we used to "back in the day". A lot less fuss than all the rules. I know not everyone has the space but all these sorting processing and trucks etc. It's not saving anything. Good on him.

I put my recycling in the rubbish to save you the stress

Thats a bummer that broken wine glasses & jugs cannot be included in recycling. Making it very difficult as newspapers no longer exist so where does your broken glass meant to go?

Christine Bradley · 1d
Wrap the broken glass in any food packaging eg plastic wrap and cardboard containers.

Natasha Kristoffersen-Tuck · 6h
Christine Bradley that is just sending more recyclable to the landfill. This is the issue.

dalegribble1664 2h
Easier to chuck all the shit together put stuff in other stuff dump it all in one place let the council sort it out

hammmemo 2d
Ffs more shit you can't recycle that should be recycled. It's so limited that you may as well not bother and put everything in the rubbish.

Sixshootax 3d
What's the point of bins if we can't put recycling in the bin? Make sense aunty before I chuck u in the boot n u gon sleep with the fishes..

Items you can put in your roadside recycling bin

- Glass bottles and glass jars (empty and clean).
- Tin, steel and aluminium cans (empty and clean).
- Plastic bottles (grades 1, 2 and 5) from your kitchen, bathroom and laundry.
- Plastic food containers (grades 1, 2 and 5).
- Newspapers, magazines and advertising mail.
- Paper, cardboard including empty pizza boxes, egg cartons and window envelopes.

If you live on Aotea / Great Barrier Island, you need to flatten and securely bundle or bag your paper and cardboard items and place them next to your crate.

Before you recycle

- Empty and rinse all recyclables and place them loose in your roadside recycling bin.
- Take lids off all bottles and containers and put them in your rubbish bin.
- Containers or packaging must be more than 5cm at their widest point and smaller than 4L (except Aotea / Great Barrier Island where containers must be no larger than 5L).
- Remove bubble wrap, polystyrene or plastic packaging from cardboard boxes – but tape and labels can remain.
- Flat paper and cardboard items must be larger than 10cm x
